Concert B♭ Major — Every Instrument

Each player's part in their own written key, with the fingering under every note

Same sound, different written notes: transposing instruments read a different key to play concert B♭.

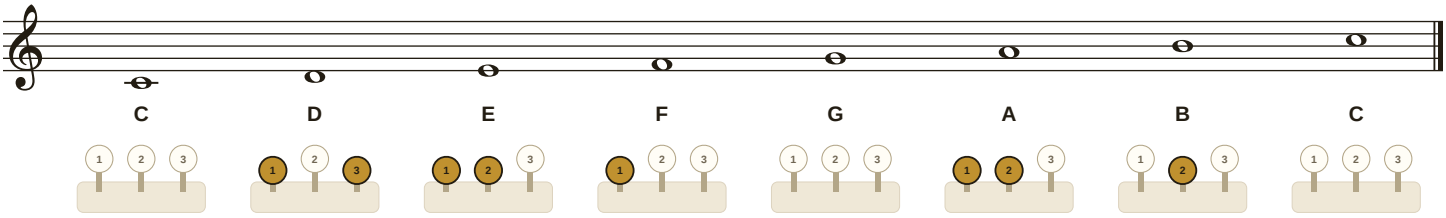

B♭ Clarinet

plays C major (written)

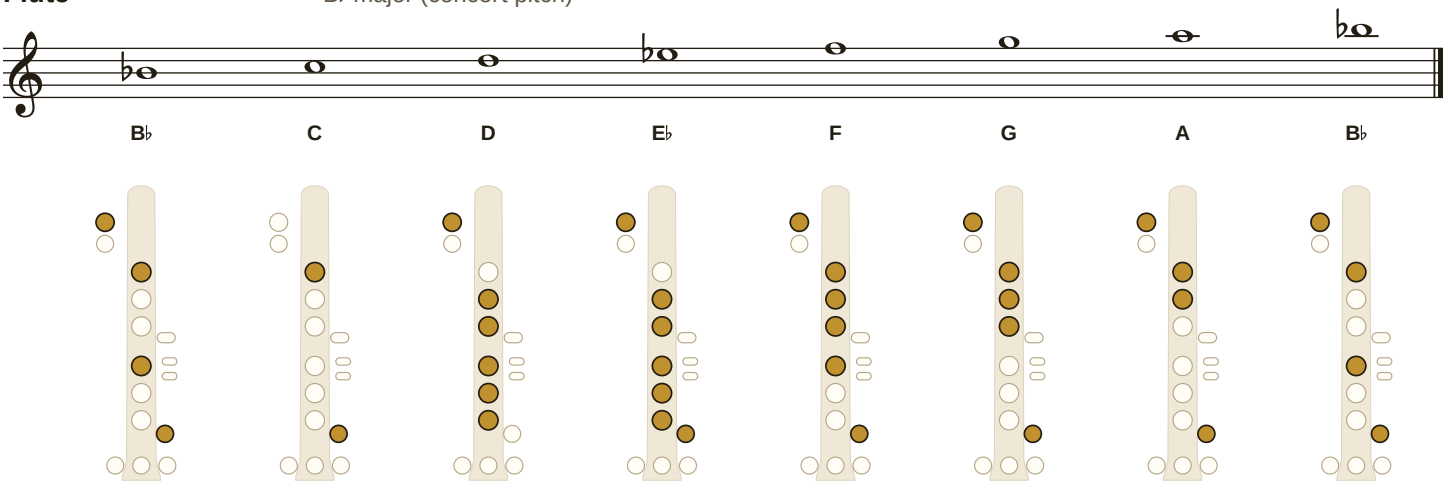

B♭ Trumpet

plays C major (written)

Flute

B♭ major (concert pitch)

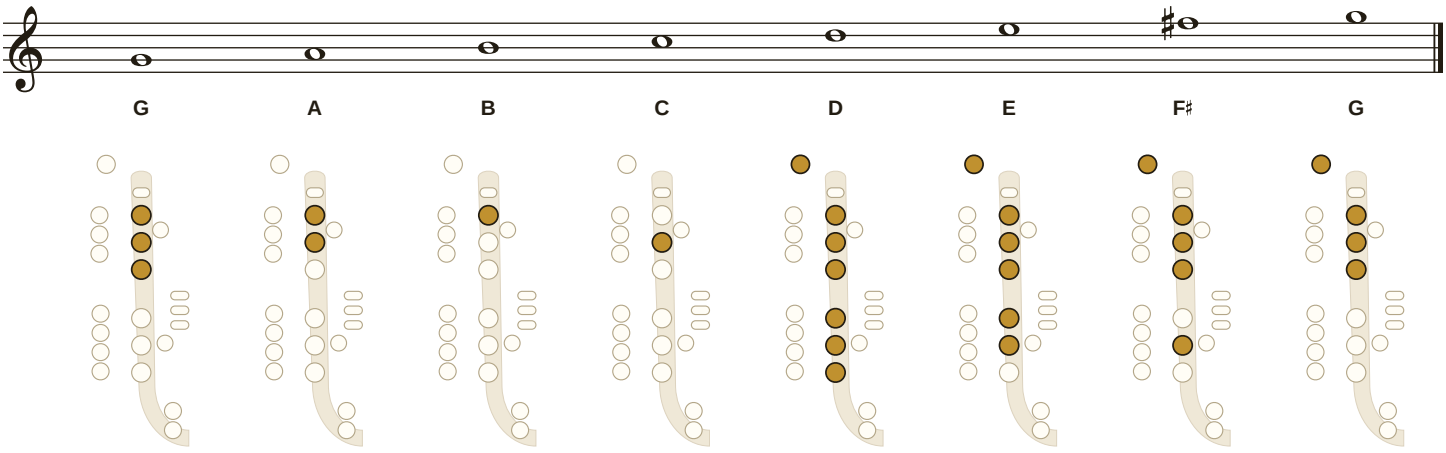

Concert B♭ Major — Every Instrument (continued)

Each player's part in their own written key, with the fingering under every note

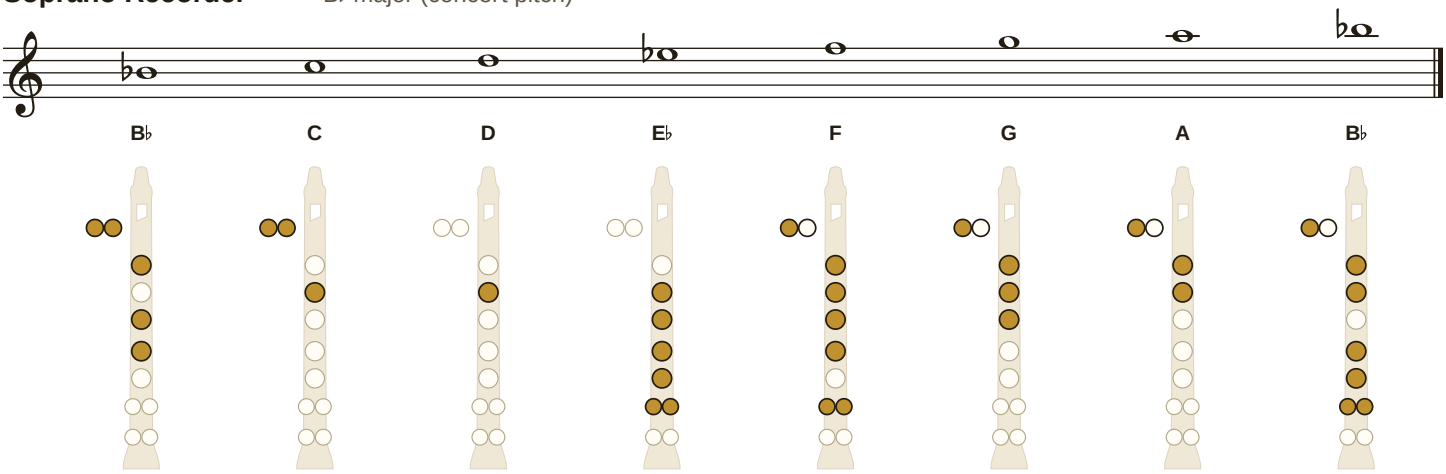

Alto Saxophone

plays G major (written)

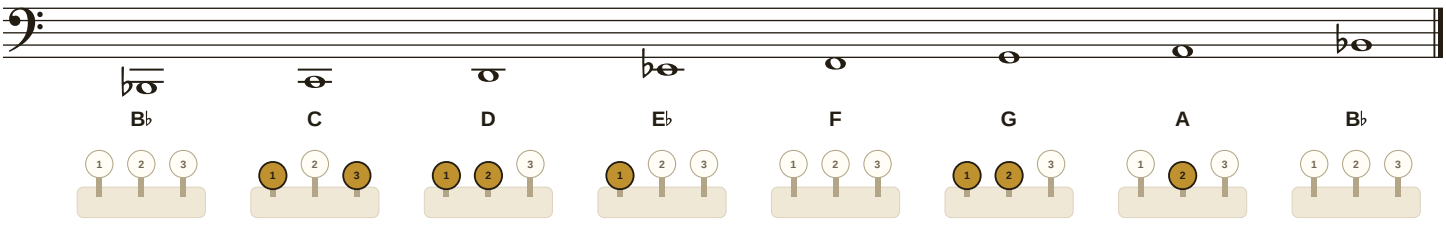

Soprano Recorder

B♭ major (concert pitch)

BB♭ Tuba

B♭ major (concert pitch)

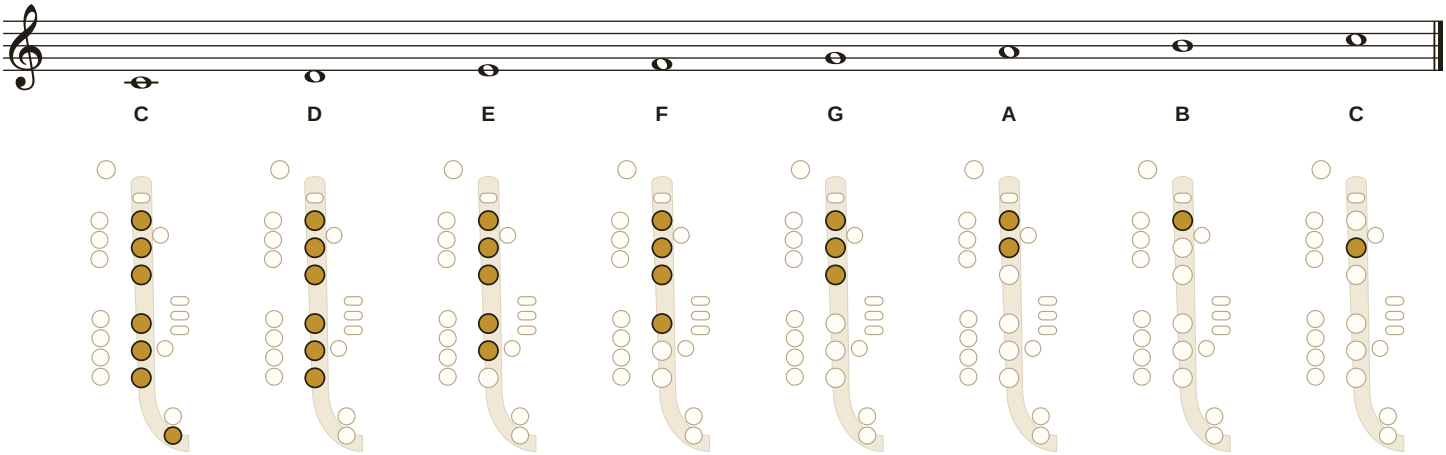

Concert B♭ Major — Every Instrument (continued)

Each player's part in their own written key, with the fingering under every note

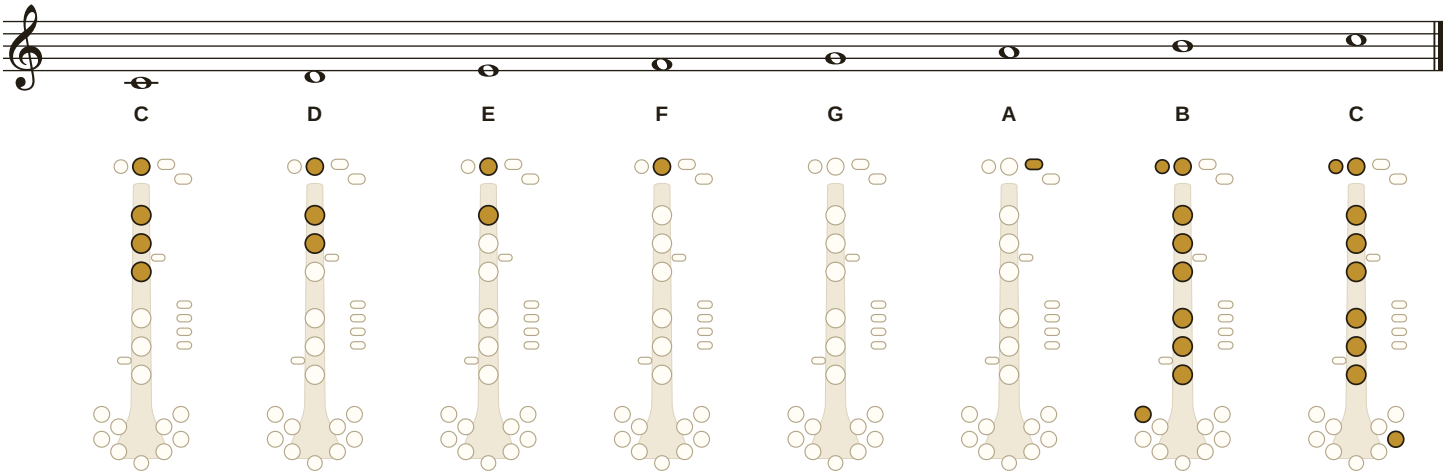

Tenor Saxophone

plays C major (written)

Bass Clarinet

plays C major (written)

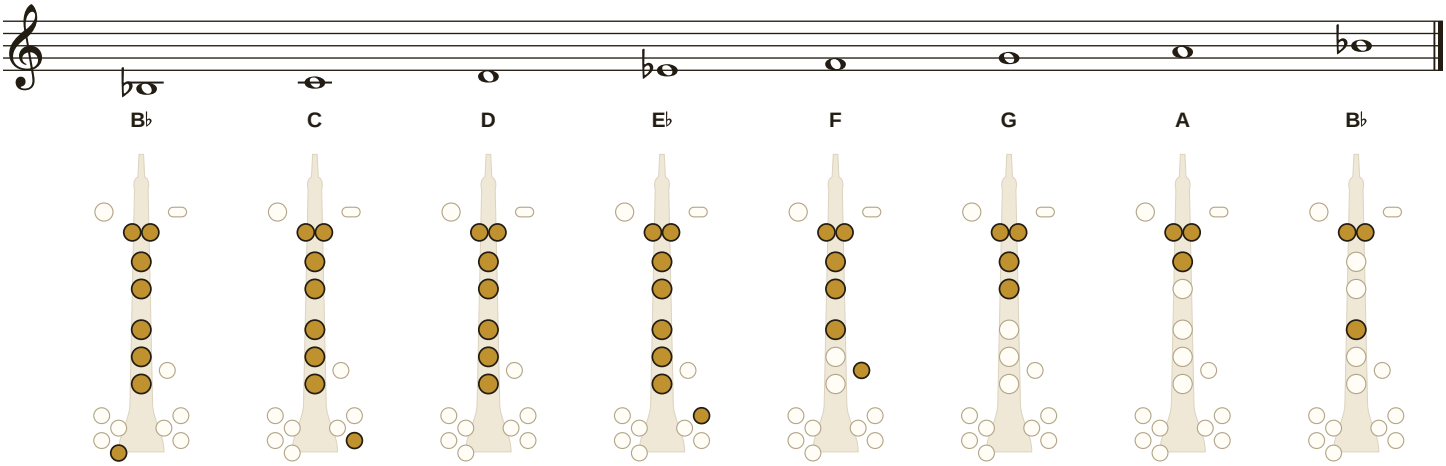

Concert B♭ Major — Every Instrument (continued)

Each player's part in their own written key, with the fingering under every note

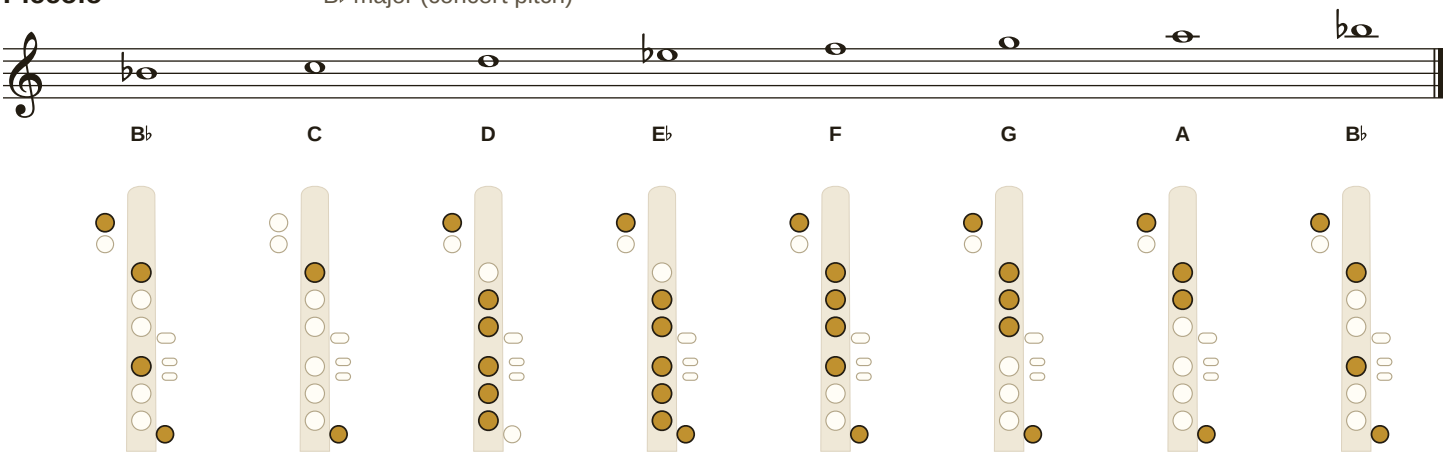

Oboe

B♭ major (concert pitch)

Piccolo

B♭ major (concert pitch)

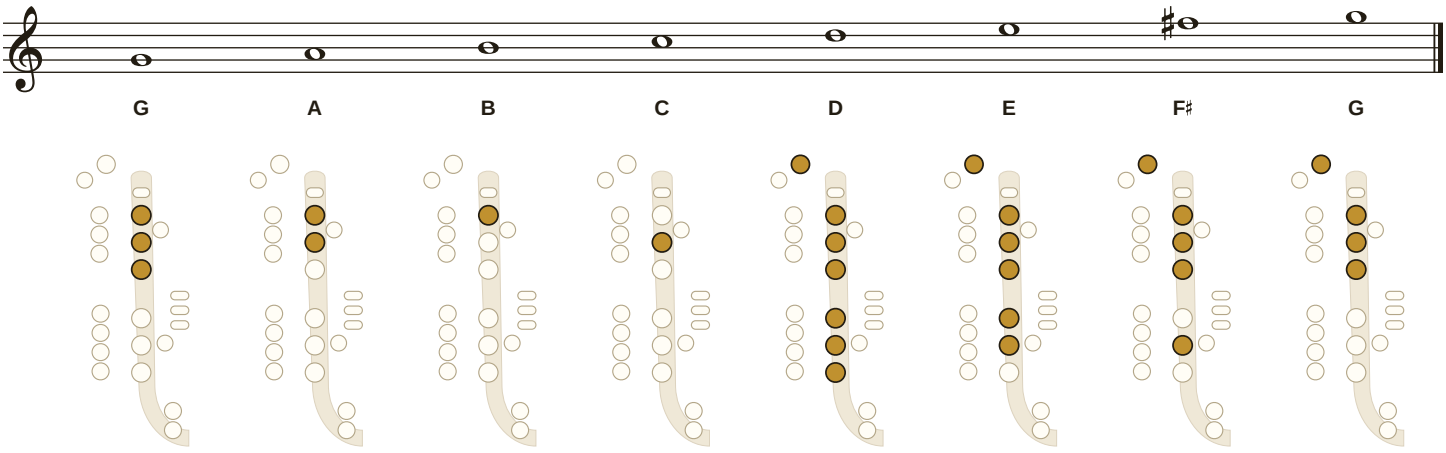

Concert B♭ Major — Every Instrument (continued)

Each player's part in their own written key, with the fingering under every note

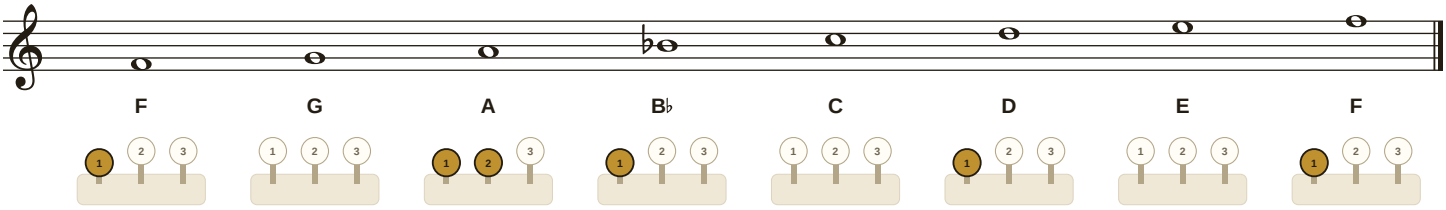

Baritone Saxophone

plays G major (written)

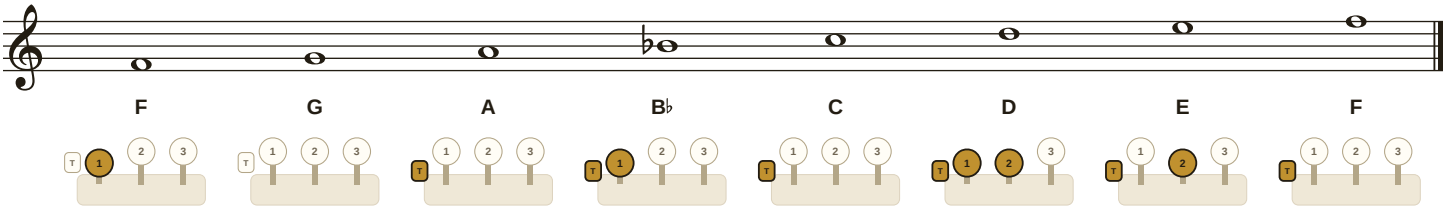

Mellophone

plays F major (written)

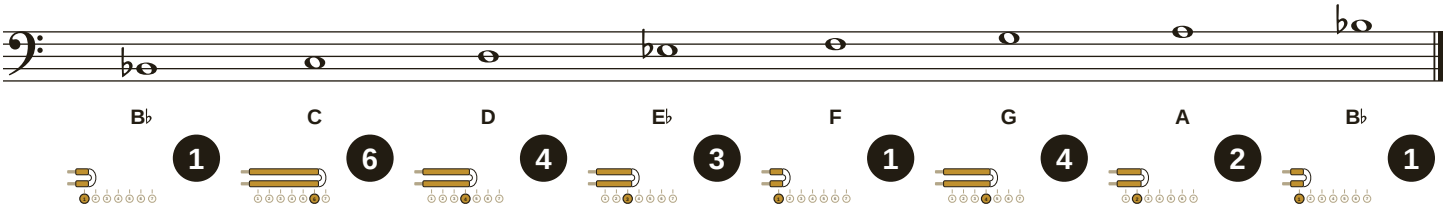

French Horn

plays F major (written)

Trombone

B♭ major (concert pitch)

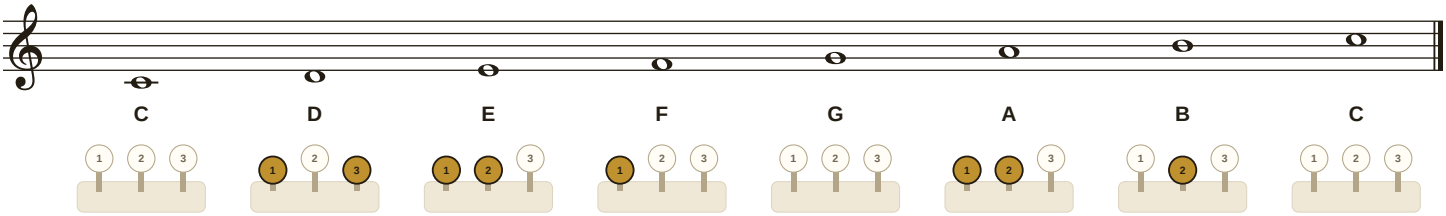

Concert B♭ Major — Every Instrument (continued)

Each player's part in their own written key, with the fingering under every note

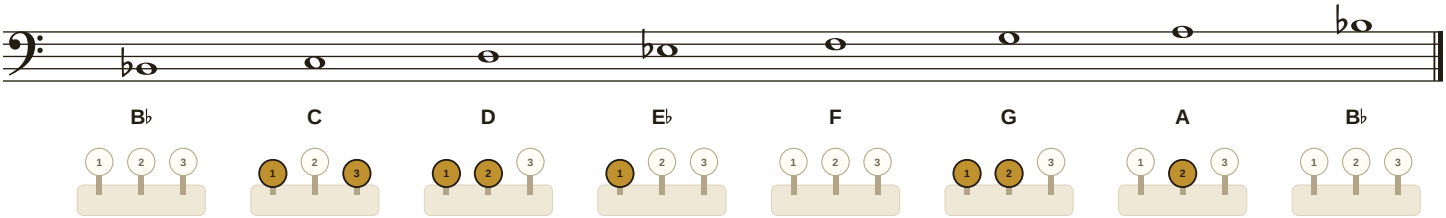

Baritone (treble clef)

plays C major (written)

Euphonium

B♭ major (concert pitch)

BB♭ Sousaphone

B♭ major (concert pitch)

